How we handle misconduct

WE CONSULT

When we are in doubt

If you are in a complex situation where it is not clear to you what action you should take, ask yourself the following questions:

- Is my action consistent with the Code of Conduct as well as with ethical and professional standards?
- Does my action comply with B2Holding policies and applicable laws or regulations?
- Do I have enough information to make the right decision?
- Have I identified/considered other options/alternatives?
- Am I capable of making an objective decision or should I consult it?
- Would I be comfortable with my action if it was made public?
- Would I be able to defend my behavior/action successfully, if it was questioned later by my manager?

If the answer to any of these questions is ‘no,’ or you are in doubt, consult with your direct manager, local or Group Compliance Function, or someone else in the company that you trust.

WE REACT

When we witness misconduct

When a misconduct, wrongdoing, violation of our Code of Conduct, policies, regulations or laws is witnessed, or whenever we have serious concerns about behaviors or business practices that make us feel uncomfortable in terms of the accepted standards, we are all responsible for reporting them.

Report either ...

- directly to your local Compliance Function and to your boss or another manager that you trust,
- via email.
